Provocation 22 of 50

New Horizons

BEFORE YOU LOOK

1. What do you envision when you think of exploring new horizons?
2. How might the image capture the excitement and uncertainty of venturing into the unknown?
3. What personal or collective changes do you associate with discovering new horizons?

This image captures the first moments of a family as they step into a bustling airport, having just arrived in a new country. Clutching their modest collection of belongings, their faces are a canvas of mixed emotions. The bustling surroundings contrast sharply with their tentative steps, emphasizing the enormity of their journey and the resilience required to navigate this new chapter.